VII. 写作 (Writing)

A) One possible version:

A dictionary is a very important tool for anyone who is learning English as a foreign language. Personally I prefer an English-Chinese dictionary. Whenever I come across a new word, I can look it up. Besides its meanings, I can also find out how to say it in Chinese, and can read some sentences which tell me how to use it. What is more, there is some other information, too. For example, the dictionary gives the pronunciation and the different forms. A dictionary not only helps us remember the words, but also increases our knowledge of English. Therefore, every student should use a good English-Chinese dictionary.

B) One possible version:

It is true that many students at school these days are suffering from a serious lack of sleep.

Take my classmates and me as examples. Now we're senior one students. Two years from now, we'll take the College Entrance Examination. Therefore, we have a lot of books to read and we have to study hard every day. When we get home after evening classes, we still have a lot of homework to do. When we finish our work, it is often eleven or twelve o'clock. Therefore, some of us fall asleep in class during the day.

To solve this problem, we need time for more exercise to make us physically healthy. Also, we should be given less homework. Most important of all, measures should be taken to improve the education system.

2. It's sold out in almost every bookstore. Why don't you read mine?

Part II. Dialogues

A) Listen to the following mini-dialogues and choose the best answer or picture for each question. Each dialogue and question will be read twice.

6. W: Thank you for coming, Mr Brown.

M: What seems to be the problem?

W: Well, I have some concerns about your daughter's maths lessons.

Q: What is the woman's job?

7. W: Oh, how much is this leather coat?

M: £135.

W: It's a little out of my price-range. I'm not sure if I can afford that much right now.

Q: What does the woman mean?

8. W: Good morning. How are you?

M: Fine, thanks.

W: So, if you're fine, why are you here to see me?

M: No, what I meant was... I'm not really fine. I've got a headache. I seem to have it all the time.

Q: Where are the speakers?

9. W: Bank of Scotland. Good afternoon.

M: This is ...

W: Sorry?

M: This is ...

W: I'm sorry but the line is very bad. Could you please ring back?

Q: What's wrong with the telephone line?

10. W: Excuse me, but where is the nearest bank?

M: There's one in Valley Road.

W: How can I get there?

M: Go along Prince Street, and turn left up to George Street. Turn left into Valley Road and the bank is opposite the cinema.

Q: Where is the woman going?

B) Listen to the following dialogues and choose the best answer to each question. The dialogues will be read twice.

Dialogue One

W: We have a scientist with us today to discuss various predictions about our weather in the future. Professor Stein, what do you think about the latest reports on our climate?

M: I think the predictions are, in general, very accurate.

W: So you think temperatures will rise in the future?

M: Yes, in the next twenty-five years, they'll rise by two to six degrees.

W: What will the results of that be?

M: Well, the ice at the North and South Poles will melt and the sea level will rise.

W: Do you think whole countries will disappear?

M: No, I don't. That won't happen for another hundred years or more.

W: Will there be enough fresh water for everyone?

M: Yes, there will. But it won't come from rainfall, which will decrease in general, but from sea water with the salt taken out.

W: Will fresh water cost more?

M: Yes, certainly, and this will mean that factory goods will cost more to produce.

W: What effect will this have on the economy? Will it get worse?

M: No, I don't think so, but we'll have to change our lifestyles in the future.

Dialogue Two

M: Good morning, Mrs Maddox.

W: It's Ms Maddox, actually.

M: Oh yes. Ms Mary Maddox of...

W: Ms Maureen Maddox.

M: Yes, of course. Now, Ms Maddox, I believe you want to borrow five hundred pounds.

W: No, in fact, I want to borrow five thousand pounds. Haven't you got my loan application?

M: No, I'm afraid not, but I understand you want to open a music shop for your son.

W: No. I want to open a flower shop for my daughter. Don't you think you should read my loan application?

M: A flower shop for your daughter. Well, I'll send you a form in the post today...

W: You sent me one last week, and I'm ringing because I have some questions about the form.

M: Oh, so you've filled in the form.

W: No, I haven't filled in the form. I can't fill it in because I don't understand it. That's why I'm ringing.

M: Oh I see! You want to ask me some questions about the form.

W: Not any more. I don't want to ask you any questions about anything! Goodbye!

Part III. Passages

Passage A

Listen to the following material and choose the best answer to each question. The material will be read twice.

W: Hello, everyone! I'm Gemma. I'm really very happy to be here with you to talk about my lifestyle and job. I definitely love pop music and listen to it all the time, even when I'm out running. Of course, I have to look after my voice. I do exercises for three hours every day and I take lots of vitamin C. If my throat doesn't feel good, I go straight to bed and have a rest. To keep my energy up, I usually try to get at least eight hours sleep a night. As for my job—you really can't be shy in this kind of work, and you have to be very patient because sometimes we practise for hours before we get it right. When we're on tour, we work for several weeks with no breaks and you can get really tired. To relax, whenever I get a holiday, I go straight to a sunny beach. The thing I enjoy most is the great feeling you get from a live audience.

Passage B

Listen to the following material and fill in the missing information in each numbered space with NO MORE THAN THREE WORDS. The material will be read twice.
